CIVILISATION, REALITY, MAY AT LYCOMING!

ST. BONIFACE DESTROYED

St. Boniface Roman Catholic Church, the spiritual home of many Catholic members of the Lycoming College family through the years and a familiar landmark to all Lycomingites, was completely destroyed by an early morning fire on December 5th.

The fire in the ninety-seven-year-old church on Washington Boulevard was discovered at 4:25 a.m. by two Lycoming students, Linda C. Nelson and Kris R. Glover. On an early morning walk the girls investigated the source of smoke they encountered in the neighborhood and discovered smoke seeping out from a church basement window. They ran to the service station at Washington and Franklin where the attendant notified firemen who "arrived in a hurry."

As firemen fought a losing battle with the flames, Lyco students assisted the nuns living across the street from the church in removing valuables from the convent. They removed the blessed sacrament from the convent chapel and took it to one of the dormitories for temporary safekeeping.

Even as the fire was being fought, many campus students offered any kind of help that they could give. The fire was brought under control around 7 a.m. but continued to burn through the morning. As off-campus students, faculty, and staff began to arrive in the area, dozens offered any help the parish might need. Jim Raffensperger, Tom Fowlston, and Sandy Hensler immediately spearheaded a drive to help raise money for the church. President Hutson offered any College facilities and equipment that might be needed. All the nuns were invited for meals and several students insisted on escorting them to Wertz Hall for breakfast. They also came for other meals.

In the following days students kept offering their services. They helped to clean vestments, sacred vessels, and other things that had been rescued. "I have nothing but praise for the students (of Lycoming College)," said Msgr. Clark, in an interview with The Bell student newspaper. "First there were the two girls who discovered and reported the fire. Later when I went to the convent to help the sisters evacuate, there were students there helping to carry things out. Friday they came in the sleet, rain, and slush to help clean up the debris. They took away three truckloads. I can not really say how much I appreciate their help."

The college arranged for a local industry to duplicate the one surviving copy of the choir's Advent and Christmas music. The music department donated instruments for the brass ensemble, and the college board of trustees offered use of Clarke Chapel and the loaning of the organ to the parish. The college parking lots were made available during the holiday period.

The loss has been set at a minimum of $2 million dollars to rebuild as it was—minus the irreplaceable stained-glass windows. So it appears that a new structure will probably replace the familiar landmark. The bells, heard by generations of Lycoming students and faculty, did not melt. They have been removed and are being tested to see if they have kept their temper. The tower might be able to be saved and the bells may ring there again.

EDITOR'S NOTE Early Tuesday morning of the fire when Dr. Hutson offered Msgr. Clark any assistance the College had the power to give, he also very generously told Msgr. Clark that "Mr. Latver was free to spend as much time on the problems created by the fire as was necessary." The overwhelming spirit of concern and generosity which deluged the rectory, my office, and my home, as I served as liaison between the College, the St. Boniface priests and the Parish Council which immediately began coping with the many problems created by the fire was no adjective is adequate. The items mentioned above are only a few instances I can recall as far as I can. So very many people helped in so many ways, and are still eager to assist whenever we need it. The priests, nuns, council members, my fellow-parishioners, and I can only say thank you from the depths of our hearts to all of you.

LYCO CLASSICS ON WRAK

The Department of Music, in cooperation with Radio Station WRAK, is presenting a series of thirteen consecutive weekly ninety-minute programs featuring classical music which began Wednesday, January 10. Students from classes taught by James W. Schaeffer, associate professor of music, plan and coordinate the programs being presented at 9:30 p.m. over both AM and FM. The varied programs will seldom be interrupted for anything more than a brief description of the classical music to be presented.

REALITY NEEDS YOU

John Snyder is a sophomore at Lycoming College majoring in Political Science. Someday he hopes to have a career in local government.

Judy Williamson is a freshman pursuing an academic program in English. She is considering a career in the field of journalism.

What do these students have in common? Both John and Judy, along with many other Lycoming students, are interested in a specific career area, but, because of lack of experience in the area, are not sure that it will prove suitable as a career.

In an attempt to help meet this need for at least some pre-career experience, Project Reality has been devised by the Lycoming College Career Development Center as a cooperative program in which alumni and friends of the college will provide students with a "one-week career experience" in a specific work

TUESDAYS CIVILISED IN D-001

"Civilisation", the renowned color film series on the cultural life of Western man, written and narrated by art historian Kenneth Clark, comes to Lycoming College for thirteen weeks.

The series started on January 16th and will conclude on April 10th. Films will be shown each Tuesday, (possibly except March 6) in D-001 of the Academic Center at 7:00 P.M. (except 6:45 P.M. on Feb. 27).

In the series, Mr. Clark traces, from an avowedly personal point of view, the story of Western civilization through the visual arts, music, literature, and political history, from the fall of the Roman Empire through the 20th Century. In Clark's words, "The aim was to define civilization in terms of creative power and the enlargement of human faculties."

The film is loaned free from the National Gallery of Art in Washington through grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities and Xerox.

THE DAVID H. FREDERICK MEMORIAL LIBRARY, which is a part of the chemistry department reading room, is growing each year as income from the David H. Frederick Memorial Fund, established in 1969, is used to purchase reference books and audio-visual materials. Mrs. Frederick, Brian, and Barchel recently visited the library which was established with contributions from Dav's colleagues, students, and friends who wished to create a symbol of their memory of an excellent teacher and fine person.

area. During the week of April 30 and/or June 4*, students will "go to work" at a Project Reality sponsor's office, plant, business, laboratory, courtroom, hospital, school, forest, or any of the numberless places where liberal arts graduates pursue successful careers. The students will not only observe but take part in as many daily activities of a specific career situation as possible. Such an approach should provide a more realistic picture of the atmosphere and actual activities of a particular career.

To be a success, Project Reality needs as many career fields as possible to be available to the students. As an alumna, parent, trustee, associate or friend of the college please consider being a sponsor or requesting your employer to be a sponsor.

The first "one-week career experience" immediately follows the end of the spring semester on Friday, April 27th. Students attending the four-week May Term could participate in a "career experience" during the week of June 4th.*

On Friday night, when the editor was lucky enough to attend, they both hushed the audience with blues and ballads and "brought the house down" with rousing fiddle tunes, clog dances, banjo and guitar picking, and other folk music. The loudly appreciative audience could not get enough of Mike Seeger, vocalist and guitarist; Bessie Jones, vocalist; Booker White, blues singer; Dan Smith, harmonica; James and Arlene Kesterson, clog dancers; Grand Rogey, fiddler, and The Fat City String Band.

ROBERT F. FALK, associate professor of theatre and chairman of the department, has been selected to be a consultant for the Theatre Association of Pennsylvania.

$1,000 AWARD CAN BE WON!

The Edward J. Gray Student Library Competition sponsored annually by the faculty has been announced. All regularly enrolled full-time students may compete for a first award of $100, a second award of $50.00, and possible entry in the annual Amy Loveman National Competition for the best student library in the United States. The Loveman competition provides two honorable mention prizes of $200 each and a first prize of $1,000. Dr. William H. Flayhart, III '66, now a professor of history at Delaware State College, won national honorable mention in 1966.

The Lycoming winners are selected by a faculty committee composed of a librarian and at least one representative from the humanities, the natural sciences, and the social sciences. Awards are presented at the annual Honors Program in the spring.

Libraries must contain a minimum of thirty-five books. Entries may be a general library, a collection centered on a subject, or the writing of a single author or group of authors. The size of the library is secondary to quality although there is no limitation on bindings. Part of the student's entry is an annotated bibliography of the books in the library and a commentary including his reasons for starting a personal library, his concept of a complete home library, and the ten books he hopes to add to the library.

Additional information and a complete set of rules for the competition should be available in the Office of the Dean of Student Services by the time this Report is published.

The Lycoming competition is named after the Reverend Edward J. Gray who was president of Williamsport Dickinson Seminary from 1874 until his death in 1905. It was in 1885 under his leadership that the first library was proposed.

CONCALVES & JOY ALL-STARS

Vince Joy, senior defensive back and co-captain of Lycoming's football team, and Porfirio Goncalves, the Warriors' sophomore placement kicker, were named to the Middle Atlantic Conference All-Star Team chosen in December by conference coaches.

For Joy, a graduate of Harrisburg's Bishop McDevitt High School, it was a repeat performance, having been selected for the same honor last year. Joy was named for his stellar performance in coordinating the Lycos defensive secondary and for his punt and kickoff return efforts. Vinnie set a season school record of 197 yards on twenty-four punt returns, and his 257 yards on ten kickoff returns for a 25.7 yards average was a fraction below the 25.8 yards school record. His defensive achievements included fifty-three tackles, two interceptions, and two fumble recoveries.

Goncalves, a graduate of East Hampton (New York) High School, was the Warriors' lone offensive threat early in the season when the Warrior coaching staff was struggling to find a scoring combination on the freshman and sophomore-dominated offensive unit.

Goncalves' toe provided the only points recorded by the Warriors in the first five games with two field goals, including a 48-yard boot against Delaware Valley that set a Middle Atlantic Conference record.

Later in the season, when the offensive unit finally found the scoring key, Porfirio added five extra points and two additional field goals to finish second in scoring for the Warriors with seventeen points. Bad passes from center or fumbles of the exchange probably cost him two more extra points and several additional field goals.

SPORTS REVIEW

Nearing the midway point in the winter sports schedule, both the Warrior basketball and wrestling teams were having successful years as measured by the won-lost column, while the undermanned swimming team was still looking for its first win in mid-January after five meets. The girls' swimming team, in intercollegiate competition for the first time this year, had broken even in two meets.

With half of their ten conference games already in the record book, the Warrior basketball team, with Coach Dutch Burch using a starting team of five juniors and backed by several better-than-average sophomores, had moved into the lofty heights of first place in the Middle Atlantic Conference with a 5-1 record. The cagers were 7-3 overall, with one loss coming in overtime and another by just two points.

The Warriors opened with a 106-101 overtime loss to Bowie before topping Elmira, 61-58 and Juniata, 74-63, in a conference game. They ran into a hot-shooting Wilkes team and were overwhelmed, 100-61, before bouncing back for three consecutive conference wins over Scranton, 91-78; Upsala, 67-66, and Wagner, 89-84. They were upset by Muhlenberg, 78-76, in the opening round of the Central Bucks Jaycee Holiday Tournament at Delaware Valley before rebounding the next night to dump Swarthmore, 82-65.

Rich Henninger, the Warriors' Junior captain from South Williamsport, had a comparatively slow start in the scoring column but had apparently found his scoring eye as the Blue and Gold went into the final games of the first half of the season. Rich, who averaged almost twenty-seven per game as a sophomore last year, failed to reach that figure in any of the first eight contests, although he was close on three or four occasions. He finally broke through the barrier against Wagner when he hit thirteen field goals and added ten of eleven from the foul line for a 36-point total. He was named to the E. C. A. C. weekly All-East team for the fine effort.

Other regulars who have given the Warriors scoring balance include Steve Cogan, of Altoona; Jim Kelley, from Emerson, New Jersey; Tom Beamer, of Camp Hill, and Lou Hilt, of Haddonfield, New Jersey. Cogan, Beamer, and Kelley each averaged near the thirteen-per-game mark through the first nine games. Hilt helped stabilize the backcourt. Filling-in and doing a good job in reserve roles were Rick Gonzalez, from Albany, New York; Bob Kearney, of Levittown; Paul Pfandlers, from King of Prussia, and Will Spokas, of Philadelphia.

The wrestlers of Coach Budd Whitehill were also having a good year going into mid-January. They were 5-2 in dual meets and had finished second to Cornell in a team event that also included Binghamton and Cortland. The Warrior matmen defeated Mansfield, 37-12; Kings, 39-6; Brockport, 24-21; New York Maritime, 40-9, and Juniata, 39-8, while losing to Lock Haven State College, 20-24, and C. W. Post, 18-26.

Several lettermen from last year's squad that finished 8-8 have been having good years. Steve Wiser, the 177-pounder from Bellefonte, was undefeated in the first seven dual meets, including five pins. Wayne Goodrow, of Levittown, was 6-1 at 190 pounds; Dan Hartranft, of Salladasburg, wrestling at 167, was 5-1; and Dave Webster, of Altoona, was 5-1 at 118. Several freshmen, including Scott Keeler, of Williamsport, and Lloyd Reiter, of Bayshore, New York, were also adding strength to the team.

The mermen under the tutelage of Mort Rauff have lost several close contests. Basically, lack of depth has hurt. The only consistent winners have been co-captains Steve Muthler, of Jersey Shore, and Steve Marshall, of Morristown, New Jersey. Warrior losses have been to Gettysburg, 40-55; Franklin and Marshall, 45-49; East Stroudsburg, 37-76; Kutztown, 35-69, and Elizabethtown, 31-69.

Mrs. Donna Miller has been coaching the women swimmers. The Warriorettes have defeated Mansfield, 44-42, and lost to Franklin and Marshall, 35-42.
